cpracsis International workshop on Research
Twenty First Century

Intellects and Researchers engaged in research in Humanities, Arts and Literature currently are often confused by the complexities of emerging methodological challenges and rapidly shifting disciplinary. Multidisciplinary or trans disciplinary approaches are thus crucial to contemporary research.

The international workshop on Research in Humanities, Arts and Literature in Twenty First Century attempts to address pertinent challenges in this field by bringing together a number of eminent scholars who have experimented vigorously with the existing patterns and practices of disciplines and constantly tried to break them down for innovative and productive research.

This workshop is meant for scholars, students, supervising teachers, faculty and the public who wish to keep abreast of the changing academic practices.
