WRITER

VILASINI (M.K. MENON)

80

Renowned writer and journalist Vilasini (M.K. Menon) was a Mathematics graduate from St. Thomas' College. After completing his degree in 1947, he pursued higher education from Madras University. In 1953, he founded an English magazine titled "Movie News" in Singapore. After two years, he began working as the sub-editor of the French news agency AFP.

He wrote his novel *Avakasikal after returning to Kerala in 1977. Avakasikal, published in 1980 is considered as the longest novel in Indian literature. This novel consists of four volumes and 3,958 pages. He was born in Karumathra near Wadakkanchery and started to write poems when he was a school boy. It was N.V. Krishna Warrier who ushered him to turn his attention to novels. Niramulla Nizhalukal, published in 1965 was his first novel.

Inaangaatta Kannikal, Oonjaal, Chundeli, Thudakkam, Avakasikal and Yathramukham are his novels. Some of his poems published in the magazine 'Mangalodayam' are later published as a collection titled 'Kaithiri'. 'Uthirmanikal' is the name of his Essay collection. 'Swa-le' is a work about journalism. Sahashayanam (Translation of Kawabata Yasunari's Japanese Novel), Kurudan Moonga (Translation of the Persian novel Boof-e koor (The Blind Owl) by Sadegh Hedayat) and Pedroparamo (Translation of the Spanish novel Pedro Páramo by Juan Rulfo) are his contributions to the field of translation. He is the recipient of prestigious awards like Kendra Sahitya Akademi Award, Kerala Sahitya Akademi Award, Vayalar Award and Odakkuzhal Award.
